BRANDING GUIDELINES

WHY IS CORRECT BRANDING IMPORTANT?

Correct branding of our lifesaving equipment and uniforms is essential. Not only does it allow our lifesavers and lifeguards to be easily identifiable by members of the public and other emergency services, but it promotes our services as unified and professional.

To streamline the process for manufacturers, suppliers, and our clubs and services, Surf Life Saving has developed a comprehensive guideline for the branding of all lifesaving equipment and uniforms. This guideline outlines the correct colours, logos, and call signs to use, and, where applicable, includes the size and dimensions of stickers for branding equipment. Suppliers or manufacturers wishing to have their equipment evaluated by SLSA should contact the SLSA Coastal Safety Team, via: equipment@slsa.asn.au

By having your equipment and apparel branded correctly; you'll help us promote the true value of Surf Life Saving.

Colour Palette

Exclusion Zone

The logo exclusion zone is the protected area around the logo that must remain clear at all times to ensure the logo maintains clear legibility.

The vertical width of the outer red ring from edge to edge is the space used to determine the exclusion zone. Do not place any competing graphic or text within this space.

This ratio can be applied to all stacked and horizontal state and sub-brand logo variants.
